The comedy "A Widow Hunt," though by no means new, has never, we believe, been performed in this colony before. It belongs to the class of cornices all awry. The cartain descended amidst if he be paid in silver, be will be able to drawing room comedies which, possessing a very a hearty round of applause. if slender plot, are dependent upon the situations created and the by-play of the actors for their success. "A Widow Hunt" is one of the thinnest of these creations and requires very good acting indeed to save it from dragging woefully. Apart from this the plot is absurd, the characters are caricatures, and with the exception of Major de hilarating. Boots, whose extravagant auties are certainly amusing, there is little to sustain more than the most languid interest in the piece. The plot, such as it is, is briefly as follows The curtain rises on a conjugal tête à tête between Felix Featherley and his amiable and model wife, of whose perfections, however, he is some-The Russian steamer St. Petersburg, from what wearied, while she is rather troubled at his Odessa with 33 saloon passengers and 550 emi- frequent absences from home. Felix is one of those goodnatured fellows to whom friends are ever appealing for advice and assistance, never in vain, though his complaisance causeshim some times to neglect his wife. Among other intimates is a Mr. Frank Icebrook, who has for eighteen months been "sighing like a fur nace" after Mrs. Swandown, a widow, to Regiment will play on the Cricket Ground this whom he was attached even before her fire marriage, but he has never yet ventured to de clare his passion. After upbraiding him for his bashfulness. Felix consents to assist this backward swain in his lovemaking, and learning that the widow covets the possession of an Angora cat determines to procure one and under cover of its presentation to prosecute his friend's suit. Meantime Major De Boots, a secret The Nagasaki Rising Sun of the 10th inst. admirer as well as tenant and "semi-detached gives the following movements of the men-of- neighbour" of Mrs. Swandown's, comes in to torment her about all sorts of repairs to his house, and takes her out to inspect the chimneys Hamilton on Monday. It is reported that the leebrook also arrives soon after, and seeing the Turenne and Chasseur will leave for the north widow in the garden with De Boots, and maddened by suggestions from Felix, who is angry at his inopportune appearance, presently insults the Major and pulls his nose. Mrs. Swandown reenters the room a little later with Mrs. Feather ley, whereupon there is a scene, from which the officious Felix makes a hurried exit, followed by the taunts of his wife and the jeers of his friends. While this complication remains unexplained another is preparing. Mrs De Boots, a strong minded dame of tragic mian to whom in a moment of madness Felix had once made a declaration of love, confides to him the secret of her runaway marriage with a French impostor, who died at the galleys, leaving her Felix declines the charge but undertakes to find s home for the child. The hon. gentleman then read the various sections, of the greatest curses in the colony. The late Section 6 read as follows:--" No person shall Mr. Charles May, who knew a great deal about bring into the Colony, or drive, carry, transport. He was sure they would amply repay any expense that might be gone to, and the animals once landed would then be under control. There was a cattle market, but we greatly wanted a depot for sheep and pigs. In section 19 an important addition had been made. It provided that "No building schall be erected or maintained in any market except shops, quarters. ormarket officers and police or porters, and stalls. Such buildings shall be of stone or brick. Shops and stalls shall be fitted with stone or wooden counters." And then came this provision:-"No person shall be allowed to tenant any house in any market unless with the written sanction and authority of the Registrar-General." This, if strictly carried out, would put an end to overcrowding of the market. No one who had not the authority of the Registrar-General would have power to reside in the market. Sections 22 and 23 provided for the regulation markets. This was formerly regulated by Ordinance 5 of 1887. Section 4 of that Ordinonce provided that " All houses, shops, lans, or other tenements in markets shall be let by the Registrar-General either by public tender or private contract for such rent, premium, or consideration, and for such period and upon such conditions as shall from time to time be fixed by he Registrar-General with the approval of the Governor in Council." It had been thought better to state the conditions fully in the present Bill. The first condition was that "All market buildings shall be let without fine or premium, either from month to month, or for term of years, for the highest rent obtainable, such rent to be ascertained by sealed tenders. In case of equal tenders the tanant in possession if any, shall have the preference." In some cases a premium amounting to a large sum has been obtained, and the holder of the licence has thus obtained a life interest. ture there will highest rent obtainable. In schedule C- Rules - subsection 6 was new. It was as follows:-"Each slaughter house shall be provided with a Lading. hanging shed, in which the carcase of every animal slaughtered shall be hung as soon as it is dressed. Such carcases shall continue hanging in such shed until they are removed to the markets, which removal shall be by means of a wheeled and covered vehicle or in a boat in either of which the carcases can be hung, and not otherwise." This would forbid the carrying of carcases on men's backs in the streets. The other rules had been taken from the by-laws already in force. Council was held yesterday afternoon. There The hon, gentleman then mentioned the existing provisions which had been omitted from the present Bill. At present salt fish cannot be sold out of the market in less quantities than one picul; it was now proposed to remove that prohibition and allow the sale of salt fish in any quantity out of the market. The ACTING ATTORNEY-GENERAL moved the second reading of a Bill entitled an Ordinance relating to Bills of Lading. He said the preamble of Ordinance 2 of 1856 ran-" Whereas it is expedient that the provisions of an Act of the Imperial Parliament of the eighteenth and ninetconth years of Her present Majesty, intituled 'An Act to amend the Law relating to Bills of Ladshould be adopted in this Colony"—and then the Ordinance proceeded to introduce those provisions as extracts from the Act of Parliament. The effect of this Bill was to introduce that same measure as a substantive Ordinance and not as an extract from an Act of Parliaciont. The ACTING COLONIAL SECRETARY seconded the motion, and the Bill was read a second time:

> An interview took place on the 30th Sept. at Genos between the Count de Paris and the Prince Imperial of Germany. Considering the bonds of relationship which exist between them, there is nothing very extraordinary in the meeting. Nevertheless, so much has recently been said about the antagonism of Germany to any idea of a Monarchical restoration in France, that it is worthy of a note, the Paris correspondent of the Standard thinks, that the Prince Imperial of Germany and the Chief of the Boyal Family of France should have, at this moment, felt a mutnal desire to show the world that the friendship which was formed between them during their youth is as strong as ever. It has been frequentasserted that the ascent of the throne of France by the Count de Paris would be the signal for a war between that country and Germany; the present interview does not however point

> A characteristic anecdote is being told just now of Prince Bismarck. When a younger and less known man he one autumn secured a suite of rooms without first inspecting them. On installing himself in them, he at once noticed that there was no bell in the apartment which he made his study and workroom, and sending for the landlord he asked him to supply the omission. "But," returned the landlord, "Herr Von Bismarck has already taken the rooms as they are, and it is he who must supply any deficiencies which may seem to him to exist." "Oh, that is your answer, is it ?" inquired the Chancellor. "Precisely so." answered his host, as he retired with a low bow. Scarcely five minutes later the sharp, short, sound of a pistol shot was heard in the Chancellor's room, and just as the landlord rushed breathless into the apartment, Bismarck, raising his hand, fired off the revolver that was in it a second time point-blank at the opposite wall. "Oh, it's all right landlord," he said, turning to the amazed man, "I'm only letting my servant know I want him." Before the sun set that day a bell-hanger had hastily but effectually supplied Herr Von Bismarck's apartments with the bells that had been lacking.

Here is a story of Carlyle, in which he got decidedly the worst of it. He once began abusing Lord Falkland :- "Puir, meeserable creature, what did he ever do to be remembered among men ?" A correspondent of the Pioneer tells a good story of the misery to which the too effusive loyalty of our citizens constantly subjects the representatives of the Queen. "Once upon a time, when Lord Elgin was ruler of India, he went up to Simin. And because there were no tongas in them days, they carried him up in a doolie, which is a conveyance designed to produce sea-sickness even more quickly than a P: and O. steamer. When he arrived he was hot, tired, dusty, and perfectly unpresentable. His faithful Commons-that is to say, his Connoil and Heads of the Departments-doubtless clean, daintily dressed and nowly shaven, guthered round the doolies to ask their Vicercy how he did, and, it may have been, to present him with an address. Then his Excellency half asleep, giddy with weariness, putting one leg out of the machine as the shutter slid back, and raising himself on his elbow, gave ulterance to this memorable notification :- 'Oh! go to the Devil.' The assembly dispersed to follow in their several ways his Excellency's direction."

A gentleman residing in Ceylon wished to make a present to a maiden aunt of his living in London, and he could think of nothing so suitable and likely to be a source of amusement to her as a mina-a small bird corresponding in appearance and size to an English black bird, and rivalling the purrot in powers of imitation. Procuring a good specimen of the species fresh from the ferest; he set a watch upon his own tongue, avoiding all slang, and boing very careful in respot of grammar. Then, taking the bird onboard a resselabout to sail for England, he gave it to the ship's each, with a promise that, if the bird was delivered into the hands of the lady with its vombulary undefiled, a bonus of 10s. would be forthcoming, whereupon the cook promised to take all possible care of the bird-to nonrish him and watch ever his morals. On the voyage the mina exercised a marked influence for good overene part, at least, of the vessel, and the cook's cuddy was a perfect hall of propriety; in due course he received his 10s. A few s passed and then the gentleman in Ceylon ived a letter from his aunt. She thanked him for his gift, but said she had been obliged to part with he mina -not, however, on account of the expressions he made use of, for his language wascorrectness itself; but she could not endure all day long plaintive cries of "Steward!" with marvellous never-ceasing imitations of the distressful sounds issuing from the lips of passangers suffering from mal de mer me either a fabulous story or a marvellous cura. The story was that a poor sufferer who had not been able to lie down in bed for six long years, given up to die by all the Doctors, had been speedily cured by some Patent Medicine. It was related with the more implicit confidence from the circumstance, as was said, that the Vicar of Librarystyd was familiar with the facts, and could youch for the truth of the report. Having a little curiosity to know how such stories grow in travelling, I took the liberty while at the village of Llaurystyd to call upon the Vicar, the Rev. T. Evans, and to enquire A. No. 23A. Immediate Possession can be about this wonderful cure. Though a total had. Apply to stranger to him, both he and his wife most graciously entertained me in a half hour's conversation, principally touching the case of Mr. Hongkong, 17th November, 1886. Pugh, in which they seemed to take a deep and sympathetic interest, having been familiar with his sufferings, and now rejoiced in what seemed to them a most remarkable cure. The Vicar remarked that he presumed his name had been connected with the report from his having mentioned the case to Mr. John Thomas, a chemist of Llanon. He said Mr. Pagh was formerly a Office. of Llanon. I left the venerable Vicar with a livelier sense of the happy relation of a pastor and people, feeling that he was one who truly sympathised with all who are afflicted in mind, body, or estate. On my return to Aberystwith, I was impressed with a desire to see Mr. Pugh, whose reputation Hongkong and Shanghai Bank Shares-173 stood so high. His farm is called Pancom Mawr. signifying "above the dingle," situated near the Union Insurance Society of Canton, Limited summit of a smooth round hill, overlooking a beautiful valley in which is situated the lovely ivymentled Church of Llanddeinel. I found Mr. Pugh, apparently about 40 years old, of medium height, rather slight, with a pleasant Yangtsze Insurance Association-Tis, 118 per and intelligent face. I told him I heard of his great affliction and of his remarkable and almost miraculous relief, and that I had come to learn from his own lips, what there was of truth in the

Mr. Pugh remarked that his neighbours had taken a kindly and sympathetic interest-in his feat. case for many years, but of late their interest had been greatly awakened by a happy change in his Small. condition. What you report as having heard abroad, said ho, is substantially true, with one exception. I never understood that my case was Hongkong and Whampon Dock Company's ever given up as hopeless by any Physician. I 1770 have been treated by several Doctors hereabouts. Early in this last apring I had a still more severe spasmodic attack, and my family and neighbours became alarmed, believing that cordainly I would not survive, whom a neighbour, who had some knowledge, or had heard of the medicine, sent to Aberystwith by the driver of the Omnibus Post, some seven miles distant, and fetched a bottle of Mother Seigel's Curative

This medicine they administered to me according to the directions, when to their surprise and delight no less than my own, the spasm ceased, I became at ease, and my stomach was calmed. My bowels were moved as by a gentle cathartic, and I felt a sense of quiet comfort all through such Hongkong and China Bakery Company, Limited as I had not before realized in many years. I feel that my stomach and bowels have been and are being thoroughly renovated and renewed by the medi-cine. In fact I feel like a new man.

Believing this remarkable case of Dyspeptic Asthma should be known to the public, I beg to submit the above facts as they are related to-me. FT W.
